

Mr. Hiroshi Ishikawa

Director, Industrial Structural Policy Division,
Economic and Industrial Policy Bureau
Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry (METI), the Japanese Government

Hiroshi Ishikawa has 21 years of experience as a policy maker specialized in energy and industry policy. He is currently Director, Industrial Structural Policy Division, Economic and Industrial Policy Bureau, Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry (METI), the Japanese Government. He is a graduate of University of Tokyo and earned a Masters' degree in Business Administration from Carnegie Mellon University. He recently served as Senior Secretary to Minister in charge of economic and fiscal policy as well as Japan's coronavirus response from 2019 to 2021. He is currently leading METI's project of formulating "New Direction of Economic and Industrial Policies".